

FOREX RISK DISCLOSURE

Forex margin trading involves substantial risks. Participants are exposed to various risks, including, but not limited to, acts of nature, changes in political conditions, economic factors, and other influences that may significantly affect the price or availability of one or more foreign currencies.

Speculative trading is challenging, even for those with market experience and an understanding of the associated risks. Only funds allocated for high-risk investments (i.e., funds that, if lost, would not affect the individual's standard of living or financial stability) should be utilized for trading.

Forex trading may not be suitable for clients who have only engaged in conservative investments in the past. Clients must understand that a total loss of all deposited funds can occur if the market moves against their position(s).

Milliva Ltd cannot guarantee the initial capital of clients' portfolios, their value at any time, or any money invested in any financial instrument.

Clients should unreservedly acknowledge and accept that they run a significant risk of incurring losses and damages due to the purchase and sale of any financial instrument and declare their willingness to undertake this risk. Clients should only invest directly or indirectly in financial instruments if they fully understand the risks involved with each financial instrument.
